

Community Outreach Volunteer Training

The Asian/Pacific Islander Domestic Violence Resource Project (DVRP) needs YOU to help increase awareness about domestic violence!

Help End
Domestic Violence:
Volunteer with DVRP!

DVRP is a local non-profit organization in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area that is committed to ending domestic violence in the Asian and Pacific Islander communities through direct assistance, community engagement and training of service providers.

Domestic violence is not a problem between two individuals; it is a community issue that affects many people we know, including family, friends, co-workers, and neighbors. DVRP relies on community members like you to help increase awareness about domestic violence and resources for people experiencing abuse in Asian and Pacific Islander communities.

Become a trained community outreach volunteer and help make this issue more visible:

- Represent DVRP at local A/PI cultural events and meetings
- Organize speaking engagements and educational events
- Develop relationships with local university student groups, community and faith-based organizations, businesses, and local A/PI media
- Distribute brochures and educational materials to community members
- Help develop outreach materials with graphic design, editing, or web design skills

Volunteers must make a one-year service commitment to DVRP.

All volunteers must participate in the Community Outreach Volunteer training.

The Community Outreach Volunteer Training will be held on: Saturday, August 25th, 2007, from 10am-5pm.
